NEWSLETTER DECEMBER 2015

Aye Aye Mon is an alumna of our university scholarship programme. She studied in the university days, she worked in Bangkok as a migrant worker for five years, continuously learning and applying her skills. Her passion for helping others led her to volunteer work experiences, which are also being offered to our students. Volunteer work experiences are not only a rewarding way to give back, but they also provide valuable skills and experience that can be beneficial in the job market.

Volunteer work experiences are not only a rewarding way to give back, but they also provide valuable skills and experience that can be beneficial in the job market. We encourage our students to take advantage of these opportunities to gain valuable experience.

In addition to volunteer work experiences, we also offer internship opportunities. Internships provide students with the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in their field of interest and prepare them for future career opportunities.

The future is bright, the future is bright, the future is bright! With the elections and the future government, our higher education team has been busy working with our partner KRCEE (Karen Research and Community Education). We are preparing for the transition plans for the camp-based programmes, as well as working on education programmes for Burmese migrants and refugees on Thai soil.

We are also working on the development of post-high school programmes to create community leaders in Myanmar. These programmes will complement our long-running high school scholarship programme, which has been providing opportunities for students to attend university.

The elections and the recent national ceasefire agreement have allowed our higher education team to focus on improving education in our schools. We have learned anything from Cinderella.

Our health group has accepted 129 new cases into the Children's Medical Fund (CMF), which is a government-sponsored programme that provides healthcare to children in need. We are pleased with the way the management committee has handled these cases.

We have tried to address by partnering with DARE (Drug and Alcohol Recovery and Education) the transmission of diseases among young adults. These are two taboo topics that have been swept under the rug for too long. We are working to change this trend.

We have learned anything from Cinderella.

In Laos, we have implemented our first five computer laboratories to strengthen computer literacy among high school students. These computer labs became an instant hit, and our students are excited about the new opportunity, which would otherwise be out of their reach. These scholarships truly transform lives, not only of the scholars, but also of their families and communities.

Happy New Year and Thank you for your Trust!

All of this would not have been possible without the very generous and outstanding support of our donors. We are thankful for your continued support, and we look forward to working with you in the future.

The elections and the future government will also allow our higher education team to focus on improving education in our schools. We have learned anything from Cinderella.

Thank you for your support and for helping us create alternatives to exploitation and poverty.

Aye Aye Mon is an alumna of our university scholarship programme. She studied in the university days, she worked in Bangkok as a migrant worker for five years, continuously learning and applying her skills. Her passion for helping others led her to volunteer work experiences, which are also being offered to our students. Volunteer work experiences are not only a rewarding way to give back, but they also provide valuable skills and experience that can be beneficial in the job market.

In addition to volunteer work experiences, we also offer internship opportunities. Internships provide students with the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in their field of interest and prepare them for future career opportunities.

The future is bright, the future is bright, the future is bright! With the elections and the future government, our higher education team has been busy working with our partner KRCEE (Karen Research and Community Education). We are preparing for the transition plans for the camp-based programmes, as well as working on education programmes for Burmese migrants and refugees on Thai soil.

We are also working on the development of post-high school programmes to create community leaders in Myanmar. These programmes will complement our long-running high school scholarship programme, which has been providing opportunities for students to attend university.

The elections and the recent national ceasefire agreement have allowed our higher education team to focus on improving education in our schools. We have learned anything from Cinderella.

Our health group has accepted 129 new cases into the Children's Medical Fund (CMF), which is a government-sponsored programme that provides healthcare to children in need. We are pleased with the way the management committee has handled these cases.

We have tried to address by partnering with DARE (Drug and Alcohol Recovery and Education) the transmission of diseases among young adults. These are two taboo topics that have been swept under the rug for too long. We are working to change this trend.

In Laos, we have implemented our first five computer laboratories to strengthen computer literacy among high school students. These computer labs became an instant hit, and our students are excited about the new opportunity, which would otherwise be out of their reach. These scholarships truly transform lives, not only of the scholars, but also of their families and communities.

Happy New Year and Thank you for your Trust!

All of this would not have been possible without the very generous and outstanding support of our donors. We are thankful for your continued support, and we look forward to working with you in the future.

The elections and the future government will also allow our higher education team to focus on improving education in our schools. We have learned anything from Cinderella.

Thank you for your support and for helping us create alternatives to exploitation and poverty.

Aye Aye Mon is an alumna of our university scholarship programme. She studied in the university days, she worked in Bangkok as a migrant worker for five years, continuously learning and applying her skills. Her passion for helping others led her to volunteer work experiences, which are also being offered to our students. Volunteer work experiences are not only a rewarding way to give back, but they also provide valuable skills and experience that can be beneficial in the job market.

In addition to volunteer work experiences, we also offer internship opportunities. Internships provide students with the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in their field of interest and prepare them for future career opportunities.

The future is bright, the future is bright, the future is bright! With the elections and the future government, our higher education team has been busy working with our partner KRCEE (Karen Research and Community Education). We are preparing for the transition plans for the camp-based programmes, as well as working on education programmes for Burmese migrants and refugees on Thai soil.

We are also working on the development of post-high school programmes to create community leaders in Myanmar. These programmes will complement our long-running high school scholarship programme, which has been providing opportunities for students to attend university.

The elections and the recent national ceasefire agreement have allowed our higher education team to focus on improving education in our schools. We have learned anything from Cinderella.

Our health group has accepted 129 new cases into the Children's Medical Fund (CMF), which is a government-sponsored programme that provides healthcare to children in need. We are pleased with the way the management committee has handled these cases.

We have tried to address by partnering with DARE (Drug and Alcohol Recovery and Education) the transmission of diseases among young adults. These are two taboo topics that have been swept under the rug for too long. We are working to change this trend.

In Laos, we have implemented our first five computer laboratories to strengthen computer literacy among high school students. These computer labs became an instant hit, and our students are excited about the new opportunity, which would otherwise be out of their reach. These scholarships truly transform lives, not only of the scholars, but also of their families and communities.

Happy New Year and Thank you for your Trust!

All of this would not have been possible without the very generous and outstanding support of our donors. We are thankful for your continued support, and we look forward to working with you in the future.

The elections and the future government will also allow our higher education team to focus on improving education in our schools. We have learned anything from Cinderella.