Description

Baan Huay Haeng is a village located in a remote place of the Pangmapha district, Mae Hong Son province. The village's Thai government school was established in 1986 and provides basic education to children from Huay Haeng as well as from four neighboring villages. Since the area is very mountainous it is quite a task to walk to the school every day. Therefore, the community built several small boarding houses, which were mainly financed by private donations. There are currently around 80 students staying in these boarding houses during the week. Two of the buildings are in a very bad condition and need to be replaced.

Implementation

Child's Dream agreed to support a new large boarding house for the boys (6x23m²), which comprises of one big room, one teachers' room and 4 toilets.

We will hire a local contractor who will manage the actual construction work. The school committee provides the construction plans, whereas the villagers of the community lend themselves for unskilled labor. The material will be bought in Mae Hong Son as well as Chiang Mai. Transportation might be challenging since the road from Pangmapha to Huay Haeng is tight and steep.

We expect the construction work to take place from December 2009 to March 2010 with a budget of USD 17,060.
